The Division of Public Utilities and Carriers has authority to regulate the rates charged by taxicabs, limited public motor vehicles, and household goods movers to ensure that the rates are reasonable. In determining whether proposed rates are reasonable, the Division will consider, among other things, the inherent advantages of such transportation; the effect of rates upon the movement of passengers or goods; the need of adequate and efficient transportation services; and, the need of revenues sufficient to enable such carriers to provide such service.

The questions below are asked to provide the Hearing Officer with a very basic understand of the position of the Applicant.

It is the burden of the Applicant to present evidence proving the need for, and reasonableness of, the proposed tariff.
